

Masonry Throughout History

Clayford T. Grimm¹

Abstract*:

It has been said that "Asiatics taught ceramics to the Egyptians." That probably happened in about 3100 BC and various forms of masonry have been used by every civilization since then. This article is not intended to provide in-depth knowledge on ancient masonry. It may, however, persuade a few readers to delve into the larger subject on their own. A few references are cited, but a much larger selection is available at most public libraries. Go browse some rainy Saturday afternoon.
